WHY IS READING TO MY CHILD IMPORTANT?

Your child needs to hear thousands of new words and sounds before they learn to read.

YOU ARE YOUR CHILD'S FIRST AND MOST IMPORTANT TEACHER

When you talk, read, and sing with your child, you're strengthening your bond and helping them learn. Research shows that talking, reading, and singing with your child every day from birth builds their brain as well as important language, math, reading and social-emotional skills.

WHAT CAN I DO?

You probably naturally talk to your baby about the events of the day. Keep doing it, and do it more! The more words they hear from you, the better prepared they will be to learn. Check out new books at the library, read together before bed each night, sing silly songs in the car, and attend a storytime. Every moment is a learning moment for your child.

HOW DO I KNOW?

You can guide your child's learning and keep track of their progress by using the Reach Out and Read (ROR) Milestones available at the Library or at www.reachoutandread.org. By using the milestone chart, you will understand your child's language development, make sure they are on track, and find activities to promote learning.

WHO CAN I TALK TO?

If you have any questions about early literacy or how to connect with other community resources, talk to the Early Childhood Literacy Specialist at your Hub or call to connect over the phone.

See library phone numbers on back.
